Cambridge Business and Technology Cluster

The intelligence of Cambridge changes the Business world.

Few locations have such global recognition and even fewer live up to their reputation. Cambridge nurtures some of the world's leading advances in technology and science in business and as such, plays host to some of the most diverse and dynamic companies in the world.

For decades leading organisations, SME's and start-ups, have chosen to locate in and around Cambridge, forging one of the largest and most successful business and technology clusters in the UK and beyond.

Access to world-class research, greater opportunities for collaboration and access to highly skilled employees have been the catalyst for development and, in turn, are key to the continuing success of the region.

A spirit of collaboration exists in the Cambridge Business and Technology Cluster, where businesses learn from each other through contact partnerships.

Haverhill Business

Haverhill has a long history of business enterprise and entrepreneurship that has underpinned much of its economic development. It has a thriving business enterprise scheme and active chamber of commerce.

The town is ideally positioned centrally to Cambridge, Bury St Edmunds, Ipswich, Colchester, Braintree, Bishops Stortford and Royston with London just over one hours drive.

This strategic location creates a wealth of opportunities, ranging from enormous potential as a leading business and investment 'hotspot' through to establishing Haverhill as a key regional presence.

The ability for the town to tap into the Cambridge economy and the East Anglia region has helped to create and sustain over 520 businesses over the last 40 years and support around 143,000 jobs in the region.

The capacity of Haverhill to offer land areas for development has added significantly to its attraction for business expansion in recent years.

Benefits of locating to Haverhill include:

- Close proximity to Cambridge
- High proportion of the population currently work in the South Cambridge Cluster
- Employment costs are 13% lower than the national average and 30% lower than London.

Built with reputation

Haverhill Research Park is owned, managed and developed by Jaynic Investments.

An established property company, known for an open, transparent and professional approach. Working with local communities and stakeholders, Jaynic ensures that it creates the most desirable places for businesses to locate to and their team to live and work.

The management team, Nic Rumsey, Andrew Anderson and Ben Oughton have wide experience in the UK property industry and an in-depth knowledge of Cambridge and its surrounding areas specifically. They have built approaching 1 million sq ft of accommodation and carried out over £1 billion of commercial, retail and residential transactions.

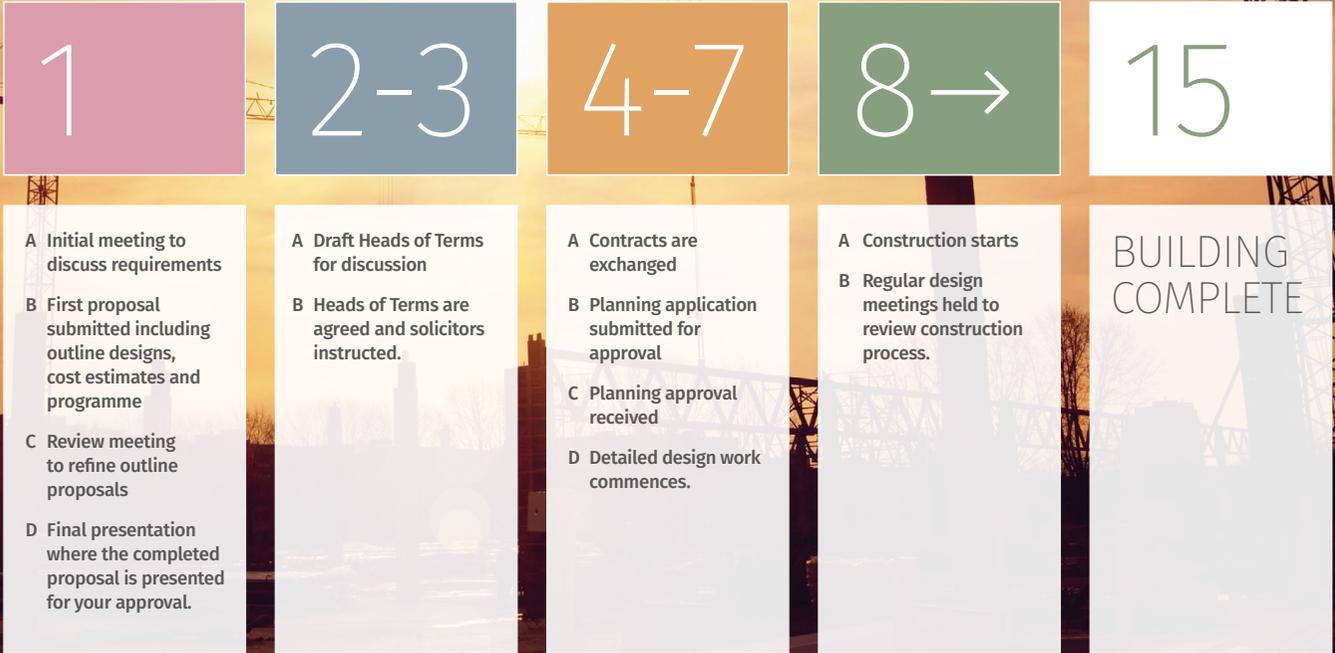

As such, Haverhill Research Park enjoys full backing of the Haverhill and Suffolk Chambers of Commerce and The Cambridge Chamber of Commerce.

St Edmundsbury Borough Council have supported the integrity of the development by offering business rates, relief of up to £275,000 over 5 years, to indicate their commitment to the scheme.

Concept to completion in 15 months or less

With full landscaping and infrastructure in place your new environment is closer than you think. Jaynic offer a proven programme for the development of your building.
